In this enigmatic city, life is strictly regimented. The inhabitants rely on the flickering lights of generators to illuminate their days and nights, and their survival depends on the dwindling supplies of food and water.

But when the generators begin to fail and the food reserves dwindle, the people of Ember face a grim future. Amidst the growing sense of fear and desperation, two young citizens, Lina Mayfleet and Doon Harrow, stumble upon a long-hidden secret.

Lina, a precocious messenger, and Doon, a skilled worker, discover an old map that hints at a possible escape from their subterranean prison. Driven by a mix of curiosity, determination, and a yearning for something more, they embark on a perilous journey into the unknown.
