

Targeted Individuals: The Agony of Stomach Pain

Targeted Individuals are individuals who have been subjected to a covert and systematic campaign of harassment and torture by a variety of perpetrators, including government agencies, law enforcement, corporations, and individuals. This harassment can take many forms, including surveillance, stalking, electronic harassment, and physical attacks.

One of the most common and debilitating symptoms of Targeted Individuals is stomach pain. This pain can be severe and chronic, and it can significantly interfere with the victim's quality of life. In many cases, the stomach pain is caused by the stress of the harassment, but it can also be caused by direct attacks on the victim's digestive system.
